All eligible ratepayers will need to apply to vote in the 2024 Local Government elections

You can only vote once in each municipality, no matter how many properties you own or occupy

Owner ratepayers will need to fill out a once off application

Up to 2 people per property can apply to vote if:

1) you pay council rates on your home but you are not an Australian citizen

or

2) you own a property in a municipality that you don't live in full time for example, a holiday home, investment property or business property.

Occupier ratepayers must reapply with council before every general election

You can apply to vote if you rent a property and pay rates to council, and you are not on the State roll in that council area.

Up to 2 people can enrol as an occupier for any single property.

Corporations must reapply with council before every general election

Corporations that pay rates may be able to appoint one representative to vote. Call the council for further information.
